

Father and Son Graves

late 1800's to early 1900's

It is believed that a local man of unknown name had a nasty fall from his horse while riding at speed down the Jericho spur. It was some time before those in Jericho realised his absence and sent out search parties.

Eventually he was found and buried on the flattest ground near the site of his accident which was between two water races.

A known widower, the search parties continued to the deceased's house to check upon his five year old son. Unfortunately the boy had died of starvation. It was decided to bury him next to his father.
